About Sugar.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1929, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

THAT the four brave Spanish fliers are safe, rescued off the Azores, is good news.

Maj. Ramon Franco and his plucky comrades, given up for lost nearly a week ago, were picked up 100 miles southeast of the island of Santa Maria by the British airship carrier Eagle.

THE four men, quite calm, took their adventure as a matter of course. All were well, and their great two-motored plane was salvaged, slightly damaged.

MADRID is delirious with joy. Asked what they mean to do, the four Spaniards replied: "Start again for America." They are on their way to Gibraltar as you read this.

UNDAUNTED, Ramon Franco reminds you of the old Spanish governor relying to suggestions, objections and dangers with a brief, aquí comando yo.

THE American Railway association, mechanics division, reports that railway profits are increased by the use of brains, as well as by increasing population and prosperity. Freight train speed in 1928 was 25 per cent greater than in 1920, which means adding 25 per cent to the efficiency of engines.

FREIGHT volume is increased 21 per cent since 1926, yet fewer locomotives are needed and consumption of fuel has decreased 12 per cent.

Among other things, do not sell American railroad stocks short. You might lose on that also.

MR. LOVE, representing beet-sugar producers, says President Hoover is in favor of a high sugar tariff. The president knows about sugar and what happens in war when you can't get it, and perhaps he is not in favor of discouraging Cuba.

He knows that high sugar tariff means enormous profits for sugar growers in the Philippines and the

OHIO CITY GETS HITCHING POSTS

LONDON, O., July 1.—(INS)—The erection of hitching posts for horses and wagons has been ordered by the village council at Plain City, near here.

In the majority of towns and smaller cities of the United States, the habit nowadays is to remove all hitching racks from the streets to make parking space for the ever-increasing number of automobiles.

But, that isn't the case in Plain City.

Plain City is the chief trading place for hundreds of members of the Amish settlement in the northern section of this county and since the Amish still look upon the automobile as something outside their religion, they continue to use the now old-fashioned horse and buggy.

BYRON NEWCOMB AND ROY MITCHELL SEEK ENDURANCE RECORD

They had been in the air 64 hours at 10:33 a. m., and the last message they dropped in front of their hangar at the airport indicated their motor was giving no trouble.

Much concern had been felt through the forenoon because of the inability to take fuel and other supplies to the endurance plane due to a heavy fog.

Shortly before noon the fog lifted enough to permit refueling when the endurance fliers signaled they were ready. At 10:15 they dropped a note which read:

"Everything okay. Have about three hours fuel."

The tender plane, piloted by Ernle Basham, air mail flier on leave, was loaded with gasoline and waited in readiness to take off with its cargo upon receipt of a note from Newcomb and Mitchell that they were ready for the next contact.

July 4 Celebration Limited to One Day

Fireworks to be Discharged Only on Thursday,
Police Order; Sale of Pyrotechnics
Opens Today.

WELLSVILLE, O., July 1.—"Buy them now and shoot them Thursday." That's the edict issued today by police authorities here regulating the sale and the use of pyrotechnics. Pre-Fourth of July ban on the sale of fireworks was lifted today so that purchasers would be afforded ample opportunity to "stock up" and, at the same time, give dealers the chance to sell their wares.

"But we want no fireworks discharged until Thursday," declared Mayor Wallace L. Fozo.

"We believe that one day is sufficient to permit a proper and sufficient celebration and we think that should be confined to the Fourth. In other communities the discharge of fireworks is not permitted at all."

The authorities ask celebrators to be as careful as possible in the use of the noisemakers to prevent possible property loss.

Dangerous Practice

As a result of the dangerous practice of hopping on ice trucks, which is indulged in by many children in the East Liverpool district, a 5-year-old boy was crushed to death in East End Saturday. The child fell as the truck backed toward the curb and he was killed under one of the wheels.

Regrettable as it is, the accident should prove a warning. Ice companies, realizing the peril, have, in many instances, painted signs, "Danger—keep off," on the rear of trucks. But this warning means nothing to young children. The responsibility rests to a great extent with the parents.

Police, cognizant of the likelihood of accidents, directed attention to the practice not more than a week ago, appealing to fathers and mothers to co-operate in the safety campaign. The ice wagon is a temptation to boys and girls during a torrid wave, and unless parents stress the danger of truck jumping other fatalities may result.

The East End accident again emphasizes the need of a suburban playground as a means of keeping children off the streets. But lack of funds precludes the possibility of the extension of the recreation center movement this summer. Thus big brothers and sisters as well as parents should caution young children against the perils of traffic while playing in the streets.

American Away From Home

Americans abroad have done much in the past to keep the purses of European wine shop proprietors in a bulging state.

One American in a high foreign office, makes the rather startling announcement that he will slap precedent in the face and serve no liquor in his home during his sojourn abroad. "I served no liquor at home and I see no reason why I should change my custom here," said Ambassador Dawes in reply to the query as to the future policy of entertainment in the United States embassy in England. All very logical, but startling enough to make news, because it is so much easier to do as the Romans do when there are Romans everywhere.

The property of an embassy is not under the law of the country in which it is located but under the law of the country owning it. Strictly speaking, therefore, it is a violation of the law to serve liquor on the property of an United States' embassy. But everyone has done it and the announcement that General Dawes will make his headquarters abroad conform to United States law may have considerable effect on the policies of other embassies.

In contrast with General Dawes' attitude is that of Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador to the United States. Sir Esme, yielding to the ideals of the Romans among whom he is stationed, has announced his intention of drying up the British embassy which can legally be as wet as the British officials care to make it, because it is under British law. This unusual stand on the part of the British ambassador has brought the wrath of all foreign officialdom on his head.

General Dawes can hardly be said to have decided to follow the example set by the American people but he is remaining faithful to his own practices and to the ideals of the men and women who succeeded in making the nation legally dry. Perhaps his unique stand will provide a good example for some of the many persons who are admittedly on the fence. The best rule always is to be faithful to your own convictions if you have any and, if you don't imitate the man whom you admire most.

New Kind of Mayor

Marland, Oklahoma, has a mayor who has the entertainment of his citizens at heart as well as their political welfare. Will A. Brooks, former manager of Miller Brothers' "101 Ranch" show, elected to lead the 1,000 residents of Marland a year ago, has had the interests of the people at heart in every way and has arranged a number of contests for their amusements and betterment.

His next big civic contest will be a rolling pin throw with human targets. Everything has been arranged but the target. Back of all this horseplay, however, there is something more serious. It was a simple case of providing entertainment for the people in Marland or of watching them flock to other cities to do their buying and obtain their amusement. A community of 1,000 persons ordinarily does not have much to offer by way of recreation.

The bad boys of Marland are not bad boys any more. Their mayor planted 35 acres of cotton and tomatoes and the boys take care of them and get the proceeds.

Marland is a tiny community. It can do things which many communities could not do, but its efforts in the creation and maintenance of civic pride have a lesson for other cities—small and large alike. There is no limit to the possibilities of a mayor in the way of leadership, if the betterment of the community is the purpose of the mayor and those who supported him at the election. He is the nominal head of his group and upon his shoulders rests the responsibility of seeing the members of that group following intelligent leadership for their own betterment or of watching them being maliciously guided into the most favorable spot for fleeing.

It is the difference between looking upon government as a prospective gold mine which is to be exploited for individual interests or as a gold mine which is to be worked intelligently by members of the group, each one realizing a fair return upon the amount of work that he is willing to do. Just as soon as people put as much into government as they expect to get out, there will be a big change in its effectiveness. Mayor Brooks deserves congratulations for assuming the leadership indicated by his title.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 1.—It is not the high traffic walls of European nations which have induced American manufacturers to erect branch factories abroad so much as other considerations. In the view of tariff and foreign trade experts of the American government, tariff may play a part in a few cases but, on the whole, it is regarded as negligible. However, there are strong considerations which impel Americans to manufacture abroad that part of their product which they hope to sell abroad. In no small measure this program will bring much relief to foreign nations still suffering from the economic depression which was the heritage of the war.

Considerable attention has been given to the recent establishment of factories abroad by Henry Ford, by the General Motors company and the American Tank Car corporation.

Only two other countries in the world, Spain and Russia, have higher tariffs than the United States. France, Germany, and Austria—three countries which would naturally furnish the largest market for almost any type of American manufactures—have tariffs only half as high as our own while England's tariff wall is only about one-sixth as high as ours. It is probable that these countries will boost their rates against American products if American rates are raised.

But in general, officials here say, the impelling causes for establishment of branch factories abroad have to do with transportation and with good will. With foreign nations carrying on campaigns urging their people not to buy any but manufactures of their own countries, it is becoming increasingly difficult to find foreign orders to keep our own factories busy and our workers employed.

Consequently, many American manufacturers feel that their chances of selling goods will be improved if the manufacturing is done on the ground. It is obvious that where a branch automobile factory is established in Germany, German workmen will be employed. Wages will be paid to German mechanics aiding German purchasing power. German steel and other raw materials will be purchased and a general good will established. Profits on sales of the product will come back to the American owners; profits on raw materials and wages will go to the Germans.

How far this foreign branch factory matter will go is a matter for conjecture but in its present stage another big advantage is that the pioneer has a distinct advantage in that he can build up a sort of monopoly. Even the best cars break down through accident or long wear. New parts must be supplied. The automobile manufacturer who has a factory in the country in which he is pushing sales has a strong argument in the fact that he is on the ground ready to supply extra parts or make repairs. The buyer of an American car need not send all the way to the United States for some little cog or cam. So the manufacturer who gets on the job first will establish a monopoly. His cars will be first in the field because purchasers will be most likely to buy from the company having the best established repair and repair department.

There is really nothing new about the establishment of foreign branches of American manufacturing companies. Wholly aside from tariff considerations, many big companies have found it to their advantage to manufacture for the foreign market on the ground. The American Radiator company, the International Harvester company, the Worthington Pump and Machinery company, the Ingersoll-Rand company, Western Electric company, the National Cash Register company, and quite a few others now have factories not only in Europe but elsewhere throughout the world. They are able to make quick deliveries as well as save freight and all the while they are building up good will in the places where they are located. Some have been established so long that citizens forget they are Yankee concerns from across the seas.

The increasing trend toward such foreign establishments is bound to have an effect toward balancing world economic conditions. These branch factories can not operate in Europe without creating a vast amount of wealth there. No company's profits compare with its costs. While good dividends from the foreign branches may be sent back here, the wages, the sums paid for rent and for raw materials, for transportation on foreign railways, the sums paid to foreign insurance companies, and the thousand and one other items go to swell the coffers of the country where the branch is located. This inevitably will place that country in a better position to pay its debts, public or private, to the United States. And what Europe country does not owe us money?

It is a great educational idea introduced into the lives of the most intelligent people in the world—American newspaper readers. It is a part of that best purpose of a newspaper—service. There is no charge except two cents in coin or stamps for return postage. Get the habit of asking questions. Address your letter to the East Liverpool Review Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C.

Q. What flags did Lindbergh's boat fly? W. B. W.
 A. The flag at the bow was the Union Jack and the one of the stern, the yacht ensign.

Q. Is riding in an airplane more dangerous than riding in an automobile? F. C. M.

A. Recent figures which compare automobile accidents with airplane accidents, show that the airplane is 75 times as dangerous. In automobiles, one life is lost for every 6,001,219 automobile miles.

Q. Are all children who enter the first grade ready to be taught to read? N. D.

A. A survey was made by the bureau of education, primary teachers being asked to state their opinions. More than 90 per cent felt that there was a difference in the mental ages of the children which led them to believe that about 20 per cent were not ready to be taught to read.

Q. Which is the darkest hour of the night? J. C. E.
 A. The naval observatory says that no light is received from the sun when it is 18 degrees or more below a horizon, and during those hours there is none that is regularly the darkest.

Q. Was James Smithson, who left the money for the Smithsonian Institution, ever married? M. C.
 A. He never married. He was the natural son of Hugh Smithson, who became the Duke of Northumberland, and of Elizabeth Keate Macle, who was descendant of King Henry VII.

Q. In what country did tattooing have its origin? M. T.
 A. Primitive races in Asia and the South Seas were addicted to tattooing. Its origin is Polynesian, derived from the verb "ta" meaning to strike.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Diary of a modern Peepsey: Awoke with an old tune jingling in my head and turning on the radio a lady was singing the same song which gave me quite a start. And a fellow telephoned to inquire what reporter in his opinion had the most picturesque name and my choice was Floyd Gibbons.

So come an invitation to join Gene Markey, Irene Castle McLaughlin and others at luncheon but so tardy in my work I could not. Looking over a list of plays for a year found I had attended 112 but only four stood out as extraordinarily fine. Then Adolphe Menjou telephoned he was at the Warwick.

To dinner at the Embassy Club with my wife to join Reinald and Verna Werrenrath, Rupert and Pat Hughes and Leon and Natalie Gordon, but home early and at my labour again, greatly comforted by a poor serif next door pounding a typewriter too. So worked until after sun up.

The flappiest of New York flappers during the reign of flapperdom has been found living in a village a two hours drive from town. Her husband is a minister and she is active in parish work which is a neat answer to somebody all right, all right.

In one of the cobwebby attics in Greenwich Village where genius touches off its deathless odds to trees and things there is a young married couple who started on their wedding day with $800. They decided to exist writing poetry or starve. In nine months they sold $56 worth of poetry and have $25 left. They'll give up.

A millionaire employs a dietitian at $10,000 a year to select his meals. Most of the time he gets nothing but Graham crackers and tepid milk.

And a building superintendent tells me an Italian who has the bootblack concession in a 40 story or so building has an income of around $12,000 a year and never shines a shoe.

And in big metropolitan barber shops the chief shiner is often next in command to the boss. He is in reality the "spotter" who reports derelictions of the barbers while the owner is absent.

Skyscrapers dwarf Manhattan streets to the eye. Few would believe Fifth Avenue is as wide as First Avenue, which has only four storied buildings, but it is. And New York's skyline so long hailed with huzzahs is now dubbed an architectural monstrosity. The ginger-bread stepping towers are creating a civic protest. Several organizations are forming to limit buildings to ten stories. It is pointed out many cloud piercers operate at heavy losses while smaller buildings almost invariably pay dividends.

We always had a sneaking notion that just when New York got all built up some silly would come along and tear it down.

The latest in trousers for fall will balloon from the hips to the ankles where they will be tight fitting. One of the fashion pacemakers some day will bloom out in trousers with a slick seat and frayed cuffs so nearly all of us can be in style.

A chop house in the theatrical belt was patronized heavily by midgets. An appreciative proprietor installed a midget table with midget chairs and diminutive dishes. And the next day he had no Lilliputian trade.

There is almost a good cry in a pawnshop window on 8th Avenue. A raccoon coat and a saxophone hang side by side among unredemmed pledges. And no doubt some collegiate misses chapel.

Canada and the Border Raiders.
 The Detroit river rum runner that fought a battle with a United States customs patrol boat, and after retreating over the Canadian border continuing to fire at the government vessel, did in this locality substantially what bandit raiders used to do along the Mexican border in the time of Venustiano Carranza, except that the Mexicans were less bold under counter attack as a rule.

The United States can not demand nor expect the Dominion of Canada to assist it in enforcing a domestic law or to guard its coasts in order to prevent the smuggling of contraband. But the United States can expect the Dominion to prevent armed thugs from using its territory as a base from which to engage in naval combats with the government boats and officials of this country, just as Canada can expect the United States to prevent coast guard or customs men from shooting over the frontier.

W. H. Price, attorney general of Ontario, and Inspector Arthur Moss, of the provincial police, are doing what the responsible officials of any well ordered nation would feel called upon to do under the circumstances when they declare that the provincial police forces at Windsor and Niagara will be doubled if necessary in order to prevent the commission of crimes by rum-runners in Canadian territory, and take measures to make sure that all boats leaving export docks in the border cities are inspected to see whether their crews are armed. Prompt action of that sort will tend to forestall complaint by Washington which, if presented to Ottawa, will have very substantial ground. — Detroit Free Press.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

The school year is at a close. Many children were not promoted because of ill health during the past term. The sad thing is that in most cases the illness could have been prevented, or the defect, whatever it is, might have been corrected.

One of the most common causes of school absence is tonsillitis. There is hardly a day that my mail does not include letters from parents about the way their children breathe. They mention that the youngsters snore or fail to hear properly. This is not surprising.

Most children have very sensitive tonsillar tissues. With some of the little patients the trouble is almost chronic. This leads to frequent attacks of tonsillitis.

The tonsils in a normal throat are not large. They are found on each side of the throat, one on each side, do not protrude to the middle. If diseased, the tonsils are enlarged, perhaps to the size of walnuts.

Between the nose and the above parts of the throat you see when the mouth is open, is the location where adenoids develop. These are masses of tissues in appearance like the tonsils. In shape these masses look not unlike bunches of grapes.

As the adenoids grow they fill up the pharynx just as a sponge would. This makes the breathing through the nose very difficult and causes the child to breathe through the mouth.

Tonsils should be removed if they are diseased, but not merely because they are large. Adenoids are sure to interfere with proper breathing, endanger the hearing and cause much trouble in reducing the amount of oxygen. For this reason they should be removed.

Every parent hesitates to submit his child to any sort of an operation. But it is unwise and unsafe to neglect surgical procedure in a case of adenoids.

In most schools the doctor examines the child for nose and throat troubles. Word is sent to the parents so that the family can take action. If your doctor recommends the removal of adenoids, by all means follow his advice. The welfare of the child depends on a prompt decision.

Answers to Health Queries.

S. E. B. Q.—What will cure a fistula, and what would such a condition lead to if neglected?

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy.

"Nights Out."

Some wives are so selfish that they object to their husbands spending a reasonable time away from home with other men.

They have their own little afternoon chats and card games with women.

Why should they complain if husbands wish to spend an evening or two a week with men friends when the daily grind is over?

Some few men never wish to leave their homes in the evening. But others like to associate with their fellows occasionally.

It does not indicate that they love home less than those who do not care to go out.

But their natures need variety, and as they must do a man's work they want to keep the man's point of view. Too many men spend too little time at home nights, and hordes remain out later than they should, it cannot be denied.

But the usual run of men want an occasional, harmless diversion in the shape of an evening once in a while with men friends, and they ought to have it.

Give the husbands a little leeway and have less discord.

The man who likes to go out once in a while will be more irritable, because of the fuss made by his wife, he feels compelled to remain at home all the time.

all-talking performance, is all and more than has been claimed for it. It presents for the first time on a motion picture screen a gigantic musical revue, constituting the first challenge of Hollywood to Broadway's supremacy.

There are eleven elaborately staged numbers in addition to a "backstage" story, skillfully interwoven, which keeps interest at the boiling point and provides the best opportunity to date that inimitable comedian, Stepin Fetchit, has had to display his talent.

Several song numbers already have been heard over the radio, and undoubtedly will become popular hits throughout the country. They include "That's You, Baby," "The Breakaway," "Walkin' With Susie," "Big City Blues" and "Pearl of Old Japan."

A staggering array of principals includes Sue Carol, Lola Lane, Sharon Lynn, Dixie Lee, David Rollins, John Breeden, Stepin Fetchit, David Percy and Frank Richardson. Con Conrad, Sidney D. Mitchell and Archie Gottler, with Fanchon and Marco, staged the ensembles. William K. Well said the dialog.

"KING OF KINGS" SUPERB PICTURE

Cecil B. De Mille's highly renowned picture, "The King of Kings," which packed the Aldine theater, Philadelphia, for nine weeks, will be on view at the American theater. Outside of New York and Los Angeles, Philadelphia was one of the few cities of the United States to be favored with an early presentation of this "picture of pictures," as many in New York styled Mr. De Mille's famous production.

With eighteen stars, 500 principals, and a supporting cast of 5,000 persons, "The King of Kings" devotes its story to the last year and a half of the ministry of the Man of Nazareth. All the characters of the New Testament live and move in this remarkable picture.

CHEVALIER WINS IN STATE HIT

When Maurice Chevalier, soldier of France, and lion of the continental stage, came marching into the silver-sheet at the State theater today, he gave his audience a big thrill, and kept them enthralled every moment that his spirited voice—and body were before them. For with Chevalier it is not alone the animation of vocal tone which "gets" people, young and small—but it is also that temperamental language of the hands, the face, the feet. With Chevalier it is genius born of spiritual inspiration.

In his current, and first, movie—"Innocents of Paris," Chevalier plays the part of a happy-go-lucky pushcart singer of the Flea Market district of Paris. He gets a chance to go on the stage with his songs and pantomine, and the plot affords him every opportunity to present the gorgeous values of his full repertoire of songs—lyrics and ballads which have established him in actual life as the reigning king of entertainment in Europe. The picture is all-talking, and it might be added, all-Chevalier—but the work of his supporting cast is none the less adequate and pleasing. Sylvia Beecher, a beautiful young actress recruited from the stage, is the purveyor of the love interest with M. Chevalier.

Foreign trade of the Philippines this year is breaking all records. ...

SPAIN AWAITS MAJOR FRANCO AND HIS PALS

Lavish Welcome Planned for Rescued Ocean Fliers.

NATIONAL HEROES

Four Men, Aboard H. M. S. Eagle, on Way To Gibraltar.

BY THOMAS LOAYZA,
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.
MADRID, July 1.—All Spain continued its preparations today to bestow the most lavish welcome in the history of the nation upon Major Ramon Franco and his three companions, rescued by the British aircraft carrier Eagle after floating for seven days at sea off the Azores.

With H. M. S. Eagle due to arrive at Gibraltar at 9 a. m. tomorrow, aeronautical societies, government officials and virtually every private individual in Spain were laying plans to provide the rescued airmen with the most vociferous and pretentious welcome ever accorded a national hero.

The Eagle, which picked up the four fliers and their giant hydroplane just one week after they had been forced down in the sea while attempting a trans-Atlantic flight from Spain to New York by way of the Azores, is steaming toward Gibraltar at approximately 15 knots, and as each hour brought her nearer land, additional preparations for the fliers' arrival were put under way.

Hawaiian islands. Sugar from these countries pays no tariff.

RAW Hawaiian sugar was taken to the United States and turned, each year, into 700,000 tons of refined sugar which doesn't pay any tariff. This amount, of course, will increase significantly under a higher tariff.

THE high tariff will crush Cuban sugar industry, without helping the beet sugar gentlemen so much as they hope.

If war came we should be compelled to look to Cuba for our sugar, because bringing it from Hawaii and the Philippines would be too far and dangerous.

It is dangerous to plan the ruin of Cuban sugar production at our very door.

WASHINGTON reports that when you go to Russia, taking a letter of introduction from Senator Borah, you find everything wide open, the Soviet union delighting to see you.

A letter from Borah is called "a magic wand" in Russia.

THIS doesn't mean, as some one suggests, that Senator Borah is in sympathy with Russians that shot the Czar. It means that Borah has common sense, knows enough not to tell a firmly established government what it must do. He is exactly the right man to be chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

NO STRINGS are attached to Borah, pulled by silly boy bankers of Wall Street that lent money to Russia, when an incubator baby might have known better.

GERMANY lifts the ban, the former Kaiser may live in his native land on one of his numerous estates, if he chooses.

But he probably won't go. Holland is calm, safe. Germany might be "different".

And the familiar drive in Unter der Linden, through the Brandenburger Gate, would be seared by the thought of the old Imperial General Hindenburg running a German republic.

THREE KILLED IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(INS)—Week-end casualties from automobile smash-ups, bathing beach accidents, and airplane crashes took a toll of three lives and caused more or less serious injuries to a score of persons around Washington.

John Pearl, 18, of Baltimore, was killed when he crashed his motorcycle into an automobile driven by Etienne Lardy, charge d'affaires of Switzerland. Police exonerated the diplomat.

Della Sasso, and Charles G. Thayer, 17, were drowned while bathing. Elvin Robertson, 27, and Frederick Kante, 27, were seriously injured when their airplane crashed on the Richmond-Washington pike. Leg and side and her head was lacerated.

TRIBUTE PAID TO MEMORY OF LATE GEN. BOOTH

Services Held in Salvation Army Citadel.

LEADERS SPEAK

Major and Mrs. Joseph Hughes Knew Chieftain.

Tribute to the late Gen. Brawwell Booth, former head of the Salvation Army was made in a special service at the West Third street citadel last night.

Both Major and Mrs. Joseph Hughes, commanders of the local corps had known him personally while living in England before coming to America.

"General Booth wrote several notable books which all reading them will be amply repaid," said Major Hughes. "He lived a consistent Christian life. He was keenly interested in the army's officers and membership."

Mrs. Hughes read the open letter to all Salvation Army corps by Gen. Higgins, the present commander. Corp. Sergeant Marjor Robert Hildebrand and Mrs. William Holden, in charge of a local outpost, also spoke.

Mrs. William Trevelan and Robert Hildebrand and Mrs. Nellie Gerren and Mrs. Arch Craven sang solos.

Announcement was made of the appointment of Lieut. Lily Mays, of this city to Corps No. 1 at Cleveland, Ohio, following her completion of training studies in New York City.

Church of Christ

Taking cognizance of the inauguration by many denominations of "Loyalty Sunday," following the affirmation some weeks ago by President Herbert Hoover of the general need for the observance of law by American people, the Rev. W. H. Baker, the pastor of the First Church of Christ, declared yesterday that the so-called crime wave is the first fruit discernible of the failure of the country's citizenry to obey the mandates of their duly authorized representatives.

He noted that the departure for celebrating "Loyalty Sunday" had been given inception by the Rev. Daniel Poling, of New York City national head of the Christian Endeavor society, Roger Babson and organizations which felt the need of rigid law observance.

"President Hoover must have felt some apprehension as to the future of the country else he would not have made the significant utterances that he released on the occasion of his speaking to the newspaper men assembled in New York some time ago," he declared. "Things may be regarded as not being at their best when the spectacle is afforded of the head of the country being compelled to thus call attention to the existing situation."

"The harm will be more apparent inside than on the outside ultimately for weakness, corruption and immorality will eventually touch those in political and financial places. When any nation refuses to do that which is manifestly right God permits judgment to come upon it."

"Every law should be enforced by officers and obeyed by the people while it is upon the statute books. If a law is wrong the easiest way to bring about its repeal is to rigidly enforce it. And if it is right then that is what should be done any way."

Anderson Methodist Episcopal

Taking the place of the Rev. R. N. Ball, who was absent from the city over Sunday, the Rev. Arthur J. Savage, of Chester, W. Va., filled the pulpit of the Anderson Methodist Episcopal church, West Ninth street, twice yesterday. His morning theme was "The Undiscouraged Christ," and "The Power of Jesus" that in the evening.

Basing his sermon in the morning on the utterances of Isaiah, "He shall not fall nor be discouraged till we have set judgment in the earth; and the isles shall wait upon his law," the Rev. Mr. Savage emphasized that Christ was the servant of Jehovah and as such initiated activities in keeping with the long before vision of the prophet concerning himself.

"This is the redeeming work for the human race," he said, "and it is being carried on amid discouragements which he himself felt keenly when inaugurating it amid the class distinctions which obtained in his day. He did not elect to follow the rich and the haughty but preferred to cast himself among the outcasts. He labored amid great difficulties in His three short years of public ministry."

"He did not follow the mob; He practiced no deception and utilized no guile."

"His attribute made for a righteousness that can not fail; it is certain of ultimate accomplishment though years of time may be necessary to bring it about."

First Methodist Episcopal
"Man, a respectable builder in the activities of the world is greater than that which he erects and as such worthy of commendation, but God is greater than man who can build since from God everything emanates," said the Rev. W. H. Mc Masters, president of Mt. Union college, Alliance, as he repeated at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Sunday morning, the baccalaureate sermon which a few days ago he gave to the 1929 graduating class of the institution. His subject was "The Man to Match the House."

"It was an appealing spectacle, these 107 graduates," he declared, "and three of them, E. K. Bennett, Jr., Ethelyn Bowman and Gertrude Weaver were from East Liverpool. These latter were a trio of which any city may well be proud. As a city you may be complimented on turning out young people like them."

He called attention to the beauties of the Mt. Union campus. "I hope that many of you shall follow the example of the late Mr. Goodwin, of this city, who once seeing them was not satisfied until he brought his brother to see them also.

He reminded his hearers that in a measure the college was theirs in that as a Methodist institution they contributed $300 annually to a fund for its up-keep and maintenance.

Nazarene Church.

Speaking twice during the day the Rev. Freddie Thomas, 19-year old preacher of Bloomington, Ill., concluded a five-day appearance at the First Nazarene church, St. Clair avenue, yesterday. His morning theme was "The Baptism of the Holy Ghost;" his evening subject was "The Judgment."

He came to East Liverpool on this, his second visit, from Cleveland and Ashtabula, where he had meetings in turn. He left today for Bradford, Pa., where he is to begin next Sunday a two-week service. At the end of this month he will go to the Park Lane camp-meeting at Rosslyn, Va.

Designated as the "Boy Evangelist" he told the story of his life to a large audience on Saturday night. Then he related that he had been converted at the age of three and one-half years of age. He was moved by hearing a companion swear. He felt the wrong of it to such an extent that he went to his mother, a Salvation Army member, who recognized his spiritual condition and enabled him to realize and experience conversion.

At the age of 12, he said, he received a definite call to preach the gospel which he has done ever since. In all he has traveled and spoken in 28 states of the Union. His parents now live in Fort Wayne, Ind. His first preaching was done in Peoria, Ill.

He stressed the need of the Holy Spirit in the heart during the Sunday morning sermon.

In the evening he painted the ruin to the human soul that would accrue in the judgment provided repentance had not taken place and sinners had not experienced a new birth.

First Baptist

There is no power that equals the blood of Jesus Christ and there is no formula to substitute for it the changing of a sinner into a Saint," asserted Miss Lillian Zuber, English teacher of the Fort Wayne, Ind. Bible school at a meeting of Baptists' young people's union at the First Baptist church, West Fifth street, last night.

"The Bible is a blood-strewn book," she said. "It was necessary to shed blood for clothing for Adam and Eve. There is no remission for sin without the shedding of blood."

"We are accordingly also clothed by Christ's righteousness."

Miss Zuber, a sister of Mrs. Rev. A. H. O'Brien, the pastor, spoke after Miss Geraldine Mundy, of this city, a second year student at the Ft. Wayne Bible school, who is preparing herself for missionary work.

She was preceded by James Bailey, who averred that Christians can not save themselves by right living or have been by accident of birth.

Local Barber Finds Relief From Indigestion And Kidney Misery

Says Owa-Ton-Na Helped Him After Everything Else Had Failed.

Owa-Ton-Na does not confine its results to cases of mild nature but even cases of long standing, complicated as they may seem even after many expensive treatments had been tried without avail, yield to this simple harmless remedy. It is not claimed that Owa-Ton-Na performs miracles nor that it is a cure-all, it simply acts as an aid in the elimination of harmful poisons, toning the stomach, liver and kidneys and intestinal tract, thereby giving nature an opportunity to recoup the normal action of these important organs.

Even though Owa-Ton-Na has been introduced in East Liverpool but a short time, hundreds of enthusiastic people tell of its benefits. Among them is Mr. R. C. Anderson, who resides at 106 Oakland avenue, this city. Mr. Anderson who is a barber at the Traveler's hotel says:

"For 9 years I have been suffering with indigestion and kidney trouble. Sometimes quite severely.

"I have used medicine after medicine and nothing seemed to do me any good. I had no appetite and when I would eat, food didn't seem to agree with me. I would have terrible attacks of gas and sourness. I was always constipated and just seemed to be getting worse all the time. My kidneys were in terrible condition. The backaches I would have made it hard for me to keep at my work. Sometimes it seemed that I couldn't straighten out. Several times each night I was forced to get up to relieve bladder irritation. This kept me from getting a good night's sleep.

"Headaches and dizzy spells all many expensive treatments to relieve most drove me crazy. I have tried this condition but without results. I had got to the point where I was disgusted with medicines but the Owa-Ton-Na man insisted that I at least give this fine old Indian Herb Remedy a trial and I want to say right now that one bottle of Owa-Ton-Na has done me more good than all the medicines I have taken in a long time.

"It just seems to cleanse the system from top to bottom. Almost from the first dose that sour, acid condition in my stomach was relieved and my appetite started to pick up.

R. C. ANDERSON

Food didn't bother me. My bowels started to act regularly. My kidneys are now acting much better than they have for a long time and I am not troubled with backaches. Believe me I am going to keep right on taking Owa-Ton-Na until this condition is cleared up. From the improvement I have shown with a few bottles, it will not be long until I am my former self."

Anyone who is suffering should give this fine Indian Remedy a fair trial and I am sure that you will be benefited. What Mr. Anderson says is the opinion of thousands of people all over this broad land. You, too may find in Owa-Ton-Na the medicine you have been looking for. Why not give it a trial yourself today? Call today and have a confidential talk with the special laboratory representative located at Carnahan's Drug Store, 144 East Sixth street, East Liverpool where she will be glad to explain to you the merits of Owa-Ton-Na and how best to take it for quickest results. Owa-Ton-Na is also sold at Carnahan's East End Store and Newell, W. Ya. Store. —Adv.

SOLVES PROBLEM

Have But One Payment To Make Instead Of Many.

LIGHT NECESSARY

Chester Firm Ready to Estimate With You Any Time.

Whenever it's a wire-pulling job you want done, you can do no better than call in the Clapperton Brothers, Chester electricians.

You may as well have a little light on the subject. Old fashioned fixtures, inadequate lighting, stifle your home in a pall of gloom after 8 p. m. and it's so easy and inexpensive to have new fixtures installed.

You can have your home re-wired so that every corner is brightly illuminated.

For the sake of your eyes and the appearance of your home, let Clapperton Brothers renew your home electrically.

Electricity and electrical appliances are as much a part of the modern home as the front door.

The man who builds a home now would just as soon think of going without food as without electricity.

Clapperton Brothers are ready at all times to estimate with you on prospective jobs, large or small, and promise immediate and satisfactory service.

or more away is fall, and after that snow and ice and discomfort.

Naturally, we can't save any of this sunshine so the proper thing to do is to step out and buy some coal — NOW!

Your own experience tells you that coal prices invariably rise in the winter time. So follow your judgment and order your next winter's supply of fuel now. Call the Enterprise and be all ready for Jack Frost.

That's the way to make your bin bring in revenue.

Say, for instance, you can buy coal now at 22 cents a bushel. Next winter it may hop to 26 or 27. You save four cents on the bushel, four dollars on a hundred bushels and even considering the interest you may get for that amount of cash, invested, you'd be far ahead of the game.

Gus Is Confident He'll Lick Lewis In Boston Match July 9

Gate of $150,000 Expected When Mat Goals Collide in Fenway Park.

BOSTON, July 1.—The proper method of tossing a flying tackle to some one's midriff will again be demonstrated here on July 9, when Gustavus A. Sonnenberg, holder of the belt emblematic of the wrestling championship of the world, meets Edward "Strangler" Lewis in a return match under the arc lights at Fenway Park.

Sonnenberg, former star football player at Dartmouth college, won the world title and the $10,000 diamond studded belt from Lewis in two straight falls at the Boston Garden last winter. Since then he has made a number of barnstorming trips throughout the country and engaged in more than three score matches.

That the return match, with American Association rules to prevail, will draw a gate of $150,000 was the expectation of Paul Bowser, promoter, who plainly announced that Sonnenberg received a guarantee of $75,000 for the tussle and that the former champion was given $25,000.

All Stars To Oppose Havanans

Exhibition Game Billed At Newell July 17.

A. B. "Pete" King is lining up a classy aggregation of district ball hands for his all-star club that will clash with the Havana Red Sox July 17 at Newell in a benefit tilt for the Newell Athletic association.

King has been making the rounds of City league clubs and expects to have the strongest lineup possible for the scuffle with the famous Cuban aggregation.

The Red Sox opened their season in Miami, Florida, early in March after a winter campaign in Cuba and barnstormed the south, gradually working their way north.

Their record to date includes something like 59 wins against a half-dozen losses.

who weighs 248 pounds and stands 6 feet 4 inches in his bare feet, as a wrestling partner for his workouts, and he was expected to be a "big" help.

To say that Sonnenberg is confident of retaining his title against Lewis is putting it mildly, for the champion announced that he would engage in one more bout this summer following the match in July. He said that a heavyweight wrestling tournament would be staged here, in which every wrestler in the world will be allowed to participate, and that he wants to meet the winner of that tournament and settle all doubt as to his right to be known as the champion of the world.

A new high water mark in attendance at an open air wrestling show was expected. The so-called "revelations" of alleged "in the bag" tactics here and elsewhere in the country has caused tremendous interest to be aroused in many who would not ordinarily think of witnessing a grappling match, but who "want to see for themselves."

JONES BEATS ESPINOSA IN NATIONAL OPEN PLAY-OFF

Atlantan Has 23-Stroke Edge to Capture Crown

Titlist Has Medal Rounds of 72 and 69 for 36-hole Total of 141, Three Under Par; Rival Trails With 84-80-164.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Word was expected hourly today to the effect that an enterprising coal dealer had gone and delivered another load to New-castle and, while definite information was lacking, a certain dog, well-known to the authorities, was believed to be a vegetarian no longer. He is understood to have bitten the man again, more beating the latter to the bite. And while we are reaching for another sedative, it might as well be mentioned that Bobby Jones won another golf championship yesterday.

He won the thirty-third of a list of national open events out at Winged Foot in a play-off that rapidly became a laugh-off after the first six or seven holes. So that if there is any further biting to be done round here, the man will do it. Without further solicitation, he will go around behind the clubhouse and bite himself.

The man in this particular instance is Al Espinosa, who tied Jones for the title on Saturday and then lost by 23 strokes in yesterday's play-off for probably as bad a beating as ever one ranking star gave another on a golf course. Jones had medal rounds of 72 in the morning and 69 in the afternoon for a 36-hole total of 141, three under par. Espinosa had 84 in the morning and 80 in the afternoon and you will have to figure for yourself just how much over par this is, because Espinosa is a worthy young man and it is fast becoming necessary to maintain some kind of a censorship over details in connection with what Bobby Jones, the amateur, does to professional golfers.

Furthermore, they are getting old trying to beat him. If professional golf is to sponsor a man who can meet this amateur phenomenon on common ground, day in and day out, that man seemingly must come from the younger school. The old guard is definitely passing.

Horton Smith, being young, is a possibility, unless that winter season of his down south was just so many horse collars, and cuffs. Densmore Shute of Columbus, Ohio, who finished in a tie with Sarazen for third place, two strokes behind the leaders, is also a potential champion.

Anyhow, something will have to be done, what with the good pros getting old and Jones carrying on from year to year without a noticeable break in his stride. He did falter at Olympia fields last year to let Farrell go into a tie with him and later the title and Saturday he blew himself to his worst round of championship history a 79 that included two 7's. But these incidents serve their purpose only as evidence that Jones is human. They prove that he can play bad golf. The only trouble is that most of the time he doesn't.

As to that, a 79 at Winged Foot is bad golf only in the sense that the public has come to look upon Jones as omnipotent. Espinosa, for instance, would have been glad to have done as well yesterday. But I suppose that a man whose record includes three open titles, two ties in which he lost the play-off and the loss of two more championships by a stroke since 1922 is not expected to go wrong any time.

It must be that Jones, by his perfection, has spoiled his public. He alone broke 70 during the tournament and did it twice. He was three strokes over par for 108 holes of the championship and play-off and he did it over one of the great courses of the world with wind and rain making it more virulent on occasions. I guess, if the truth were told, Jones is entitled to step down from his pedestal every now and then. He must have moments when he is bored with his own perfection.

COLUMBUS CAPTURES TWO GAMES

And Toledo Hens Land Two From Indianapolis.

Sunday, the double-header day of baseball, which occurred again yesterday, today being the morning after, proved very, very exciting, and up-setting in the American Association pennant race and Milwaukee slid shamefacedly into the cellar again.

In all instances except one, the dopsters' buckets were upset, and in two of these aforesaid instances, the water in the pails was so badly spilled that it will take a lot of sponging to gather it up again.

For the first time, since the start of the current season, the Columbus Senators took both games of a double-header yesterday by defeating Louisville by 5 to 1, 7 to 6 scores.

Toledo, Ohio's other team in the association, followed the example of the Columbus aggregation, and took the scalps of Indianapolis' players in games which ended 12 to 0, and 8 to 7. The last one, as can be plainly seen, was a close call.

St. Paul, third position team, proved itself the old reliable bulwark it is, by nosing out Kansas City, which now holds first place, in a set of games which, the scoreboard showed, ended 2 to 1 and 6 to 4.

Minneapolis was the only team which followed the route picked by the famed and oft-times wrong dopsters. It trounced Milwaukee in the twin games by 8 to 3, and 9 to 1 scores.

The following figures tell a story all their own:

SLATTERY RIPE FOR STUB BOUT

Will Fight Michigan Champ Tuesday Night.

STEBENVILLE, O., July 1.—Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo, New York, one of the leading lights of the light-heavyweight division and Len Darcy, light-heavy champion, of Michigan, are ripe for their encounter in the 10 round main bout of an all-star card here Tuesday night under the promotion of Martin "Foke" Smith and will taper off with light exercises today.

Slattery is down to 168, his best fighting weight and Darcy tips the scales at 175. The Buffalo Irishman, after taking a spanking at the walloping mitts of Tuffy Griffith a short time ago, is on another of his fighting excursions and when he meets Darcy the Michigan champ is due to look at plenty of fireworks.

Darcy fought Slattery in Buffalo recently and was given the short end of the decision. He claims he should have at least been awarded a draw and is going into the Steubenville ring at the North end field Tuesday night with the expressed purpose of handing Jimmy a pasting.

The encounter of the topnotcher and Darcy has been attracting valley and tri-state mitt fandom and a record smashing crowd is expected to jam its way into the old bandbox the night of the scramble. The feature attraction is backed up by three good prelims.

New Mystery Story of "Gray Phantom," Loveable Outlaw.

By Herman Landon

Copyright by Street and Smith Corporation.

"It seems to be a field day for detectives," the lawyer remarked. "Mr. Dawson, let me introduce Lieutenant Culligore of the New York police department."

Vanardy extended his hand. With an inward quaver, but without a sign of nervousness, he looked for a moment into a pair of slowly twinkling mouse-colored eyes—eyes that even the Gray Phantom had rarely been able to deceive.

The Invalid.

Dinner passed off rather smoothly on the whole, save for an occasional sensation of uneasiness experienced by Vanardy when Lieutenant Culligore fixed him with one of his slow, baffling glances or twisted his lips into one of those vacuous smiles that in the case of any other person but Culligore would have signified nothing but a sluggish intellect. When the little dinner party broke up, Vanardy had no reason to think that the lieutenant had penetrated his assumed disguise, but there was food for somber reflection in the thought that Culligore had always possessed an uncanny knack at hiding his thoughts.

It was a motley little gathering, and beneath an exterior of light banter the air was charged with the kind of tension that is always noticeable in groups where there are cross-purposes and mutual suspicions. Stanhope, sleek, genial and well poised, did his best to supply an element of comic relief, but now and then a forced and unnatural note crept into his pleasantness. Culligore, the inexorable man-hunter, seemed to lay unnecessary emphasis on the fact that his visit was unofficial and that the capture of the Gray Phantom, granting that that accomplished villain had committed the murder, was a matter of personal pride with him. Harry Ball's saturnine and cynical, seemed to find a certain grim satisfaction in the belief that he was under suspicion. Vanardy played his part with great skill, but was unable to determine whether suspicion or condescension was uppermost in the attitude of his companions. Now and then he glanced covertly at William, who, silent and efficient, hovered at their backs, but the servant's face revealed no other concern than a desire to render competent service.

The visitors decided to spend the night at Tuckaway Camp, and it was agreed that one of them should occupy the blue room, Stanhope pointing out that a night spent on the scene of the murder should offer exceptional opportunities for observation. The person who was to sleep in the chamber of mystery was chosen by lot, and the chance fell on Vanardy.

When the others retired to the library for a smoke and further conversation, Vanardy made an inconspicuous exit and went out on the porch. The prospect of spending a night in the blue room appealed to him, but the mystery of Craig's death was overshadowed in his thoughts by his concern for Helen and her father. Several developments had already told him that his instinct had not deceived him when it prompted him to begin his search at Tuckaway Camp. The fog that had enveloped his mind for weeks was shattered by the belief that at last he was on the right track.

There had been days of black confusion when he had not known which way to turn, when his anxiety to be of help to the woman he loved had fired his veins and inflamed his mind. He did not know what had checked his mad plunge, but thoughts of Helen had come to him in the midst of his madness like a shining white flame, illuminating the dark corners of his mind and instilling in the chaos of his brain an irresistible illusion of radiance and loveliness.

Now, for the first time in weeks, he felt sure of himself. The Gray Phantom had always won in the past, and he would win now. He would find a way to circumvent the diabolical contrivances of Whipple and the gang he represented. It was a roundabout way, and to the Phantom's mind a strange and bewildering one, but he would succeed. Whipple felt secure in the belief that the Phantom could not follow him or interfere with his movements without jeopardizing the life of Helen's father, but he had not counted on a flank attack such as Vanardy now had in mind.

The night was black as pitch. A southeaster whistled dolorously in its sweep across the lawn. Vanardy stepped to the end of the porch and strained his eyes against the darkness. Creeping shadows, creatures of his imagination, seemed to fill the impenetrable void, but one of them appeared more real than the others. He had a faint impression that a blurry shape was moving away from the house, and instantly he thought of William.

Very softly he started in pursuit. A short distance ahead, the scraping of some one's foot against a rock confirmed his impression that a person was moving in the darkness. The pursuit led him toward the water front, and the uneven ground rendered it difficult to make progress without stumbling. He could not see his quarry, but occasionally he stopped to listen for foot-falls that indicated the direction in which the other man was walking. He reached the beach, and here the course turned toward a point directly opposite the one where the old boathouse was located. Progress was less difficult now, but the danger of losing sight of the quarry was correspondingly greater. The pursuit had extended over a third of a mile or so, when at an abrupt bend in the shore line, Vanardy saw the lights of a house twinkling among the trees.

For the moment there was neither sign nor sound of the man he was pursuing. Doubtless he was already inside the house, which was situated about thirty or forty yards from the shore. A path wound up to it from the beach, and Vanardy approached cautiously. As he came nearer, the building appeared to be a frame dwelling, too large for the needs of a fishman and too poorly constructed for a millionaire's summer home. Hoping to find some trace of his quarry, Vanardy mounted the wooden steps and stood at the door, listening.

It opened abruptly, projecting a wedge of light into the outer darkness. An old and shriveled little man stood in the doorway, peering at him. As if satisfied with the caller's appearance, he smiled benevolently and beckoned him to enter.

Vanardy followed. There was an air of tranquillity about the house that instantly stifled the faint misgiving he had felt the moment the door was opened. Moving with the lightness of a straw blown before the wind, the old man conducted him down the hall. He knocked on a door, waited until a gruff response sounded within then opened and stood aside to let the caller enter.

Curiously impressed by his strange reception, Vanardy stepped forward. The room, though crudely furnished in a bungalow fashion, had a homelike appearance. There were bookcases along the walls, rugs of bright pattern were scattered over the floor, and a huge shaded gas lamp on the center table diffused a soft light. In a wicker chair before a blazing log fire, with a blanket drawn up over his knees, sat an individual whose villainous features afforded a sharp contrast to the cheerful surroundings.

"Who the devil are you?" he demanded sourly. "My name is Philip Dawson," said Vanardy, both amused and puzzled. "I am staying temporarily at Tuckaway Camp, having offered my services toward clearing up the Craig murder."

The occupant of the wicker chair grunted in a way that might have meant any one of several things. He had an owl's assortment of features, with a large and totally bald head, a hooked nose, a narrow gash of a mouth that was twisted into an unpleasant half-smile, and round, beady eyes that seemed astoundingly alert. From their rigid position Vanardy inferred that his legs were paralyzed, but the upper portion of the man's body was bending forward intently, while he scrutinized his caller with a peculiarly saturnine expression.

"A certain person entered this house just a few moments ahead of me," said Vanardy feeling that he was expected to explain his presence. "I am looking for him."

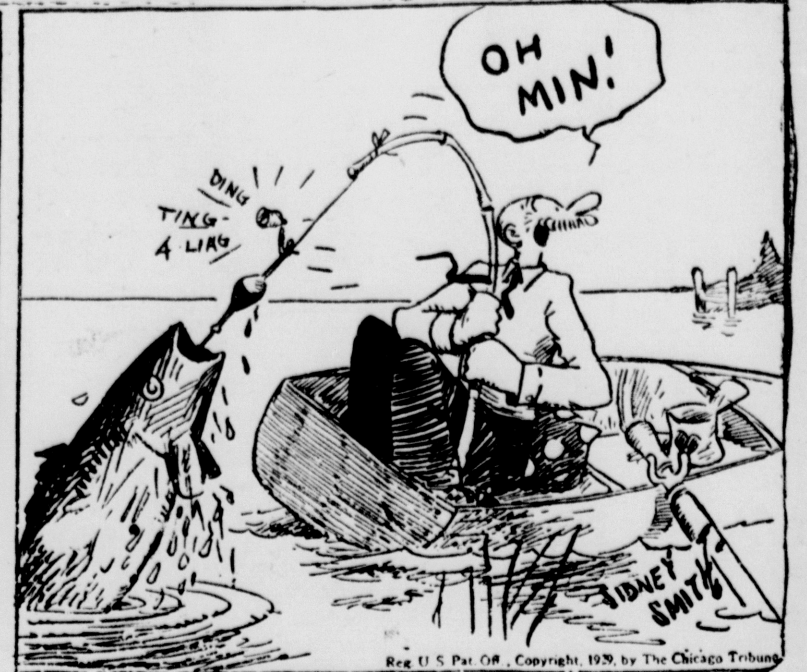

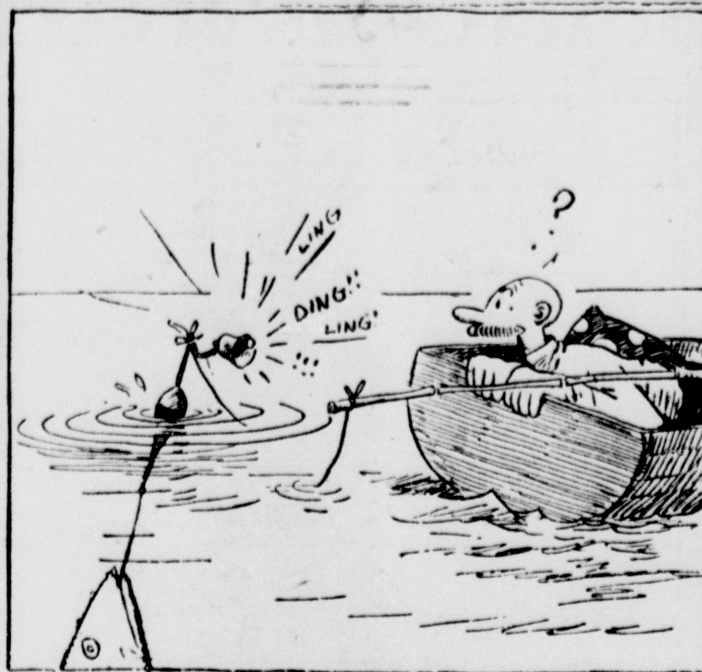

"A certain person? That's rather vague. Don't you know his name?"

"I am not sure," Vanardy had only a hazy impression that the man he had followed was William. "He may be one of the servants at Tuckaway Camp. His actions struck me as a bit peculiar, and so I started after him."

A glint of suspicion entered the cripple's bleak eyes. "Most amazing," he declared. "You say this person entered my house just ahead of you. You must be mistaken. No one enters this house without my knowledge."

EAST END REV. DR. DEAN REPORTS OHIO SYNOD ACTION

Second Presbyterian
Pastor Attends Meet
At Wooster.

MISSIONS AIDED

East End Minister Represents Steubenville Presbytery.

Plans leading to activities that will restore in the near future the former foreign mission status that obtained in this arm of the work of the Presbyterian church were developed during the session of the Ohio synod which has just ended its 1929 deliberations at Wooster.

The Council of the Synod for Missions was attended by the Rev. Dr. F. A. Dean, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, as the chairman of the Steubenville presbytery foreign mission board in which sat fourteen other Ohio presbyterian chairmen. The session was presided over by the Rev. Dr. W. H. Hudnut, pastor of the First church of Youngstown. He was re-elected to that position and the Rev. Harry W. Barr, pastor of the First church of Urbana, was re-elected the secretary.

The Ohio synod was able to report an increase of some $25,000 for foreign missions during the last year, said the Rev. Dr. Dean, who added that the Steubenville presbytery had increased its contribution.

Evangelism Emphasized.
"It is the hope shortly to send back again to their old fields those missionaries who some time ago had to discontinue their labors by the necessity for financial retrenchment," he said. "Then there were at the same time the letting out of some of the native ministers and teachers. It is believed that with the carrying out of the plans begun that all of them also will eventually be enabled to resume their activities."

The work of foreign missions will be stressed by the church during the coming year.

Evangelism will be emphasized by the synod early next fall. Then it is proposed to devote six weeks in turn to the work of foreign and national missions, pensions and church education.

"There will be the dispensation of special literature pertinent to the several subjects in these interims throughout the various presbyteries of the state or synod. Ministers will preach sermons having these subjects in mind and in the cases of missions those who may be in the country on furlough will be procured to speak."

Rev. Dr. Wishart Moderator.
"The election of the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Wishart as moderator of the Ohio synod after he had served some years ago as the moderator of the General Assembly established what may be a precedent in the history of the church, at least in the Ohio synod."

It was agreed to meet again next year in Wooster, the spot being of a central location.

The Rev. Dr. Dean spent two days at Wooster. He accompanied the Rev. Thomas G. Bergner, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of Wells-ville to the synod. Among the others who attended from this city were the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Lawther of the First Presbyterian church, and their daughter, Ruth, and the Rev. E. A. Walker, pastor of the Emmanuel Presbyterian church, Park boulevard.

Besides his parents, he is survived by five sisters, Ruth, Hazel, Margaret, Florence and Phyllis.

Funeral services will be held in the home at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, in charge of the Rev. J. P. Wisman, pastor of the Boyce Methodist Episcopal church, assisted by the Rev. J. Lloyd McQueen, of Steubenville. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Washes woollens
and blankets!

When you wash with hard water there's a dirty ring around the edge of the basin, but that's not suds. It's scum. The hard water is doing that. It's mixing with the soap to form a dirty curdle. Can't wash woollens and blankets in that water.

Soften the water with Melo. Then add soap. The water is now a very fine cleansing agent and the soap is much more effective. Melo did that. Get a can today at your grocer's.
